Task 3

Read the article below about safety at the seaside.

Write an email giving advice to a friend who is going to have a seaside holiday for the first time. Write 70–90 words. You may refer to the ideas in the article, but write in your own words.

Safety at the Seaside

When you arrive at the beach, you need to decide where you are going to sit. Some people may want to be very close to the sea, but they have to be aware of the tides. The tides (changes in the level of the sea) go up and down twice a day. In some parts of the world (like the Mediterranean) the difference between high and low tide may be less than half a metre. However, it can be huge in other regions, with the sea rising ten or fifteen metres. Accordingly, you need to know whether the tide will force you to move before you plan to leave.

Safety in the water is very important. A good swimmer must stay close to anyone in their group who cannot swim, especially children. Even if you can swim well, you are advised not to go beyond your depth; in other words, you should be able to walk back to the beach if you get into difficulty. Also, you should not lie on an inflatable mattress or toy on the sea. You may soon find yourself hundreds of metres away from the beach. Never swim soon after you have eaten. Your last meal should be at least three hours before you swim.

Whether you are on the beach or in the sea, it is important to protect yourself from the sun. For this, you will need a good sun hat and proper sunglasses. Make sure you keep putting sunscreen on all the parts of your body which are not protected by clothes, both before and after you go in the water.

Finally, remember that a lot of other people use the beach, so take your rubbish home with you. This not only makes the beach more pleasant, it also makes it safer for everyone.

Task 6

The latest issue of an international magazine you read had an article about a nightmare teacher (see the text below). The magazine has invited readers to send in an article about their dream teacher. Write about 100 words.

A Nightmare Teacher

Ms Blixen is the wrong person to be a teacher for many reasons. Firstly, she knows very little about her subject, history. If we ask questions about the topic that are not answered in our book, she gets annoyed because she is not sure of the answer. She never gives us praise for the things we do well, but she is quick to criticise our work. She has also made it clear that she believes young people should not have opinions. In fact, even if we support our opinions, she will not accept them, but will punish us instead.

Task 7

Read the extract from a newspaper article about teenagers' free time.

DAILY NEWSMind and Body: Can Young People Exercise Both?

Lots of teenagers love taking part in sports and similar activities, especially when this gives them opportunities to have fun with friends. However, teachers and parents are careful to stress to young people how important it is for them to study hard and get good grades in their exams. This can be quite stressful and certainly leads to many teenagers feeling that they do not have enough time for themselves.

Schools and parents expect a lot from school students, yet students need to spend time with friends doing sports and similar activities that they enjoy. How important are such activities for young people and how can they find the time for them? Support your views with examples.

Write about one page (approximately 180 words).

Task 8

Read the newspaper article below about young people and fashion.

DAILY NEWSHas Fashion Freedom Gone Too Far?

In recent years young people, both boys and girls, seem to have become a lot more fashion conscious. Now it is common for teenagers to choose their own clothes rather than the clothes that their parents want to buy for them. They are often influenced by peer pressure, by advertising, and by fashion sections of magazines. Parents claim that this can be very expensive, and schools complain about trends that they consider to be unsuitable for young people.

Write a letter to the editor, sharing your opinion on the issue and offering suggestions as to how students can be fashionable without causing disagreement.

Write about one page (approximately 180 words).

Task 9

Write a letter to a friend about a tourist attraction you have visited. Explain what you liked and suggest she goes there. Write between 100 and 120 words.
